Q: Does one save sinner's soul by killing the sinning? There is a verse in Psalms 19:13 which says: The wicked have taken possession of me unawares, but the loyal will recompense me. The words in bold here are taken from the Hebrew text, which I translated as follows: The wicked have taken possession of me unawares, But the loyal will recompense me. What I would like to ask is: 1. Does the second verse convey the same meaning as does the first one? 2. Where does the verse in question come from? A: The focus in this verse is God as the one who is grieved over sin. This is used in the Septuagint (translating the Hebrew text, not the verse in question) in the form of a contrast with the heavenly temple
