download.In April, Hye Sung was just another college student carrying a rucksack filled with a laptop and textbooks, heading back to campus.
When police caught the 19-year-old in Toronto, he had a smaller rucksack crammed with a trove of material including a computer, documents, papers and even a ladder. He also had 200,000 Canadian dollars ($148,000) in cash, said Toronto Police. Their case would not be investigated as it didn't involve smuggling, but they would discover that the young Korean-born Canadian was doing the very thing the government is now trying to stop: bringing drugs over the border to sell them for a profit.
