Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an image capturing apparatus, and in particular, to an image capturing apparatus used with a digital camera, a video camera, and the like. 2. Description of the Related Art Digital cameras have been often used by computer users for acquiring image data of subjects. A conventional digital camera uses a CCD sensor for capturing images. The CCD sensor includes a set of photoelectric converting elements arranged two-dimensionally, and outputs an image data corresponding to the respective images through a drive circuit. However, the CCD sensor is expensive as compared with a lens unit, and hence, when a large number of image data are to be obtained with one digital camera, it is considered to use as many digital cameras as the number of images to be obtained. This approach is difficult to attain in terms of both cost and space. FIG. 13 is a diagram showing a conventional image capturing apparatus using a CCD sensor. The image capturing apparatus shown in FIG. 13 includes a lens unit 101, a lens barrel 102, a shutter 103, a CCD sensor 104, a signal processing circuit 105, a memory 107, a CPU unit 108, and a power source unit 109. The lens unit 101 includes a lens, a shutter, a filter, and the like. The shutter 103 is driven by a shutter
