as you can see we are windows users in our office. the machines are so slow that when you open ms word, and then hit the print button it says "print job already in progress" and freezes the user out. other softwares are working just fine with one exception. we have a network filter on that computer. I am not sure what is causing this to occur. any help would be appreciated. when I open my firewall properties, it freezes. I can not get the firewall to work without freezing up my computer. A: I am not sure how the Windows filter is configured or what technology it uses, but it's probably the cause. It is possible to allow certain programs through this filter without allowing all other programs. Try going to the Control Panel and then choosing Add/Remove Programs: Right-click on "Turn windows features on or off" and choose "Turn Windows Features on or off" Choose "Programs and Features" from the list Choose the

"Internet" tab Scroll down to the "File and Printer Sharing for Microsoft Networks" entry and click on the "Turn Feature On/Off" button You can select or deselect individual items if you want.

Some programs may be unticked by default, I usually get everything except Gmail disabled. If you know what you are doing, you can go to each "Programs and Features" section to make further changes. The "Internet" tab may be somewhat hard to find if you are used to Windows 7, it's hidden behind the "File and Printer Sharing" section. If you know any scripting, it is possible to take this further using WMI (Windows Management Instrumentation) as described here.

Coat of arms of the Borough of Hinton The coat of arms of the Borough of Hinton, West Yorkshire, England, consists of a chequy shield. The town is one of twenty-seven civil parishes, local government divisions and parts of county boroughs to be granted a coat of arms as part of the Traditional Counties Act 1981. Description and symbolism According to the blazon, the shield is divided horizontally by a red line into three equal areas, and in the center is "a chequy gules and argent, the chequy within a double tressure flory counter-flory argent, that of the upper chief being charged with three fle
